Radio Mix/Club Mix 30 of the 50 Top Wedding Song #30 Keep up with the latest daily buzz with BuzzFeed Daily news! Your first dance as a couple is prevalent with anticipation. You will probably be overwhelmed with emotion already because this is your wedding day after all. Not to mention the fact that in those few minutes all eyes are directed at you. Choosing a wedding song that has special meaning will soothe your nerves so you can focus on how those dances move right. First, you want to decide how fast or uptempo the first dance song you want. Most people choose something quite slow with a 4/4 beat because it's easiest to dance. Put some random tunes and dance in your room to see what feels right. Think about what music makes you particularly meaningful. Was the music played for the first time during a kiss or engagement? Are there lyrics that instantly make one of you think about the other? Is there an excerpt of music that always makes your heart swell? If your parents have a happy marriage, you might want to dance to the same music they did. If you ask these questions, you still don't have that one great choice, don't worry: Many couples don't have their own song until they choose the first dance song. Instead, spend some time taking into account how you want to describe your love, and then look for songs and music to fit that description. It may take some time to find the best first dance song, but the good news is that you can have a lot of fun doing it. You can also consult with vendors. Your wedding band or DJ will most likely have offers for you in your repertoire. Just make sure to check out the lyrics. So, of course, you need to find the best melody to mark a special occasion. But finding the right song to fill in just three minutes on your entire wedding day is a difficult task. A survey of more than 900 married couples by The Black Tux revealed some of the most desirable first dance songs in the industry. The study revealed that The Righteous Brothers Unchained Melody was the most popular choice, while classic love songs performed by Etta James, Frank Sinatra and Elvis Presley also earned a place on the list. More contemporary songs from performers such as John Legend, Ed Sheeran, and Adele also made the top 15. If the top charts are not your jam, do not be afraid - we also have the best selections of unique first dance wedding songs, which are only commonplace. Whatever your taste, choose something that you and your partner will both love and cherish for years to come. On the front we rounded up the best first dance songs for your wedding. 01 of 70 Lyrics of Love: But I would walk five hundred miles / And I would walk five hundred more / Just be the man who walked a
